

Anything Goes

In order to stretch the dollars farther, she asked me to construct an antique 1920's era wheelchair, because the ones she was looking at on-line were going to cost around $200, which would eat up most of her budget, and she felt the one that was donated just didn't have the right look. As a result, I was able to cobble together the donated modern wheelchair, with an antique desk chair to give the audience the right 1920's feel. It was a big hit.
